Fallen Rebellion is a 2.5D platformer in which the goal is to reach the end of the game and beat all the levels without any saves. It's a classic gameplay, but the story is something new. Run, jump and slide through the land of an ancient civilization in a challenging platformer in which your goal is to reach the end without any saves. Steampunk / Retro style for the year 2018. Fallen Rebellion has a Total Play Time of 45 minutes, out of which about 30 minutes are played. Due to its short length there is no replayability, but I hope, by reaching the goal, you'll have fun. How To Play: -Hold left to jump -Hold right to slide and move left/right -Hold down to run Instructions on the right side of the screen You can also replay the levels again. To do that press the start button on the main menu. Updates: I've tried my best to make the game as interesting as I could and I want to continue making games like this one. What if you could play the game on five different difficulty levels? What if you could play the game on three different smartphones? Are we missing something? Waves 3D is the next generation VR experience from the Beach Labs: VR experiences designed to change the way people interact with nature. These were developed in collaboration with science to explore how to create a new experience where we can escape and enjoy nature in virtual worlds. The project is currently supported by Tsinghua University, National

Geographic and the Burj Al Arab hotel. This is a standalone experience that does not require Beach Labs to play. It can also be played using just a VR headset like Google Cardboard, Samsung Gear VR, HTC Vive, Oculus Rift or Oculus Quest. Waves 3D makes the richest virtual world ever to be created in virtual reality possible. A realistic, natural and breathtaking experience. User Reviews Beach Relaxation VR 4 Interesting concept, but... It's such an amazing concept, it's reminiscent of wonderful experiences by Pixar. Unfortunately, all the polish and finesse of the production doesn't do it any favors. For the price I expected far better. While it could have been great, all the little annoyances like the menu being too easy to miss or the interface being a bit confusing prevent this one from being nearly as enjoyable as it could be. Basically, you walk around a beach on an island and find objects (your sand castle, a seagull, sun, moon, tree, sun light in the sky, etc). You can use the touchpad on the controller to interact with these objects. You can enter a second screen by holding the controller up as high as you can. Here you can access the menus, explore the creation world more easily, and choose to play a game. It's definitely a fun concept but the whole thing feels bloated with tech that doesn't quite add anything of value. It still feels like it's more of a tech demo than an actual game but at the same time its one of the best experiences for VR in 2019. It's just so disappointing to see such a well-crafted concept ruined by poor execution. Immerse yourself in your own private tropical island from the comfort of home in Beach Relaxation VR. Listen to the soothing waves from your beach chair as you watch the seagulls play near the water. Lie in a hammock as the palm trees wave in the gentle ocean breeze. Paint a beautiful sunset on a canvas that you can take anywhere with you. Build a sand
