thus, we can say that this book is the most valuable of all books on the face of the earth, and it is the one that is worthier to be read and learnt by all the ummah, and it is the one that will enable us to understand the perfect and complete islam. allah (glorified and exalted is he) says in the holy quran: "he who has been granted knowledge (of the quran) shall read it in the beginning of the day and in the end of the day, and he shall not read it except when he is in need of it." (16:103) the interesting point in quran verse 2:229 is that it is the only quranic verse which gives the definition of khul as the act of extracting oneself from the marital tie. it is noteworthy that the idea of khul is a generally accepted term amongst muslims. thus there is no doubt about its existence. however, according to some scholars khul is only applicable in case of pre-contractual marriage, while according to others it is applicable in all cases of marriage and only at the time of consummation of marriage. this issue can be discussed on the basis of quran verse 24:32. there is another very interesting aspect of the verse; quran verse 24:32 says that khul is not possible until din-i-ilahi is there. it means din is the divine law, and din consists of divine judgements and commandments. first we will look at the quranic definition of din. it is to be noted that the term din is mentioned in quran in three different places, which are (i) in quran verse 2:2 (ii) quran verse 7:157 and (iii) quran verse 7:157-158. the quran verse in which it is mentioned in its complete form is as follows:
